

FLIP CHARTS AREN'T DEAD!

10 quick tips for presenters

1. Use dark colors, like black or blue, for your text.
2. Use separate pages for separate ideas.
3. Post your flip chart pages on the walls for reference throughout your session.
4. Even if you're not an artist, add graphics, pictures or flowcharts on your flip charts when it makes sense.
5. A great trick for remembering nuggets, notes or stats to write on your flip chart is to write a reminder on the page VERY LIGHTLY in pencil
6. Print clearly. Take your time, especially if your penmanship isn't the greatest!
7. Stand to the side of the flip chart/easel as you write, so you don't block it.
8. Avoid talking "at" your flip chart while you're writing on it. Face your audience so they can hear you AND see what you're writing!
9. Always use markers that have a relatively broad tip, so they can be seen clearly from the furthest points in the room.
10. Avoid using red or green markers - studies show that 7-10% of the population have red-green colorblindness.
